

Mexican Explosion-proof Distribution Box Application Company

Overview

Lapex delivers explosion proof lights, fans, panels, and cable glands engineered to global safety standards.

Key Takeaways

Several suppliers in Mexico offer certified explosion-proof distribution boxes, including Atex Delvalle, Warom, and local manufacturers listed on Europages. Key Suppliers

1. Atex Delvalle Atex Delvalle provides custom-made explosion-proof distribution boxes and local control stations suitable for hazardous areas (Zones 1, 2, 21, 22). Their products are available in stainless steel (AISI 304L/316L) or GRP, with ATEX and IECEx certifications. They offer configurable options for control devices, switches, push buttons, and terminal arrangements, designed to withstand extreme temperatures and outdoor conditions. Their enclosures are suitable for industrial, chemical, and offshore applications . 2. Warom Warom manufactures modular GRP explosion-proof distribution boxes with optional components, including main and branch switches operated via external rotary actuators. The boxes feature complete internal wiring and international brand explosion-proof terminals. Cable glands and special configurations are available on request, making them suitable for flexible industrial installations . 3. Local Mexican Manufacturers Europages lists 22 companies in Mexico supplying high-voltage and explosion-proof distribution boxes. These suppliers can provide direct contact for wholesalers and custom orders, offering a range of materials, sizes, and certifications to meet local industrial standards . 4. International Brands with Mexican Presence Companies like CZ Electric Co., Ltd. offer explosion-proof distribution boards and control systems with ATEX and IECEx certifications. While headquartered in China, they have agents and offices in multiple countries, including Mexico, providing access to certified products and technical support .

Considerations for Selection

- Certifications: Ensure ATEX, IECEx, or UL certification for compliance with hazardous area regulations.
- Material: Stainless steel (AISI 304/316L) for corrosion resistance, GRP for lightweight and durable installations.
- Customization: Check if the supplier can configure internal components, cable entries, and control elements to your project requirements.
- Environmental Conditions: Verify suitability for extreme temperatures, outdoor exposure, and chemical environments.
- Support and Delivery: Local suppliers or distributors in Mexico can provide faster delivery, installation support, and maintenance services. By contacting these suppliers, you can obtain quotes, technical specifications, and customization options to match your industrial or hazardous area project needs.
